Do we need more domains?

Description

This is maybe somewhat brutal, but then again, maybe not. I think we call the end of the http address the domain, .com, .gov, .net, .us, .biz, edu, .info. I propose a new domain (if thatÃ¢â‚¬â„¢s the right name for them): .joke. I mean, it would warn people before they went there about the mirth ready to befall them. I we could start with http://www.johnkerry.joke. How does that sound? From there, consider the possibilities. We could have MCM (mainstream comedy media) such as www.billcosby.joke, www.adamsnadler.joke, www.stevemartin.joke, and www.rosannebarr.joke (oopsÃ¢â‚¬Â¦these are supposed to be funny!). Then again, maybe itÃ¢â‚¬â„¢s a bad thing to decide we need more domains. What will come next? Maybe .satire, followed by .news (which may be good, but how will you know if CBS belongs in the .joke or .news domain?). Pretty soon, there might be .bucanneers for the somehow still loyal in Tampa, which would be like .saints for the New Orleans crowd. Anyhow, this is a planted thread, to see where it goes from here. The options are pretty endless, unless we ru n out of English words, at which point, we could do a survey for the next most popular language (Spanish?) and begin lifting those words to populate the net with new domains. The down side is our little heads will explode, trying to keep track of the explosion of addresses we have to keep track of. WeÃ¢â‚¬â„¢d have to demand wall sized screens, just so we had a hope of scrolling through our lists of favorite addresses. Now, that would drive the display market to feed our need. Oh, but what about if someone opposite your view registers the domain name first> For instance, as a staunch Democrat, you could go to www.johnkerry.com and think heÃ¢â‚¬â„¢s some commercially related site, you know, someplace that wants your money! Hey! WaitÃ¢â‚¬Â¦thatÃ¢â‚¬â„¢s it, HE DOES! Not only will he take your donations, heÃ¢â‚¬â„¢ll tax you and get what you used to have left over for yourself, and spend it how he sees fit. I digress. But, as a good Democrat, your fingers may slip and youÃ¢â‚¬â„¢d end up on www.johnkerry.joke. You may be terribly confused if the jokes there are not household humor of the incredibly wealthy, but those from his opponents. If you went to www.johnkerry.biz, youÃ¢â‚¬â„¢d find nothing, as heÃ¢â‚¬â„¢s never run a business. At www.johnkerry.mil, there may be a single entry, in large purple heart ribbon color letters that says (no emphasis added): Ã¢â‚¬Å“I SERVED IN VIETNAM!Ã¢â‚¬Â• at www.johnkerry.info, IÃ¢â‚¬â„¢m not sure what youÃ¢â‚¬â„¢d find, certainly no federal bills bearing his name. How about taking a peek at www.johnkerry.us. HmmmÃ¢â‚¬Â¦just what could be said there? Maybe a list of Heinz plants that have moved out of the country and Ã¢â‚¬Å“outsourcedÃ¢â‚¬Â• the work to foreign nationals. So it would carry the connotation of really more like www.johnkerryswifesaysscrewyou.us. ThatÃ¢â‚¬â„¢s our Ã¢â‚¬Å“Momma T!Ã¢â‚¬Â•

default watermark

Category

1. Blogging

Date Created
September 28, 2004
Author
admin