Thanksgiving, oh, and opinions.

Description

Itâ€™s been a busy time setting up to get away for a few days. I have not been here for a few days, and wonâ€™t be for a few more.

I thought it would calm down after the election, but itâ€™s getting exciting again. Iâ€™m once again becoming a little irritated reading peopleâ€™s opinions. Itâ€™s not that we shouldnâ€™t have ours, but it sure would be nice if we could manage to know what we donâ€™t know and not open our mouths, or click our mice, when we are under (or un) educated to make a coherent decision on how we should naswer a â€œsurvey.â€•

This topic has been rattling around in the pile of chaotic thoughts and hasnâ€™t made it to the top of the heap. As a quick wondow into my one day forthcoming thoughts: I never saw a survey/opinion poll that asked the persons on the street whether the doctors did President Clintonâ€™s bypass surgery correctly. â€œWeâ€• have asked about every question imaginable about President Bush and every decision made by any one in the entire government. Thereâ€™s rich soil in this topic to plowâ€¦

default watermark

In the meantime, Iâ€™m headed north a few states to spend tomorrow with family.

For all of you who can read this, I know you know you are thankful that 1) you are enabled through an education, 2) you have been blessed by enough finacnial resources to have access to a computer and the Internet and 3) that many have gone before us, in every place in our lives to allow us to be here. Have a wonderful holiday and make a special effort to get in touch with those in your family that are a not in your regular contact cycle.

Category

1. Uncategorized

Date Created
November 24, 2004
Author