Her sonâ€™s a Marine, but I think youâ€™d not want to take this lady onâ€¦.

Description

When it comes to â€œout of the boxâ€• thinking (a polite way of saying it can be completely stupid, and completely unhindered by fact, or even a degree of maturity, in this case), take a moment to see what Deb of Marine Corps Mom found coming from a mind of mush at UMassâ€¦.

It got her attention and she needed a little stress relief, so she chose to express her opinion in return. Fair is fair, right? If you want to see some articulate writing, portraying a level of understanding, compassion and selflessness of thought, as well as a grip on the state of world affairs, now take the time to peruse her letter, complete with young Naughtonâ€™s meager effort to justify his pitiful behavior.

default watermark

Scary as it is, it seems to be the fundamental MO of the liberal, victimized mindset. If you canâ€™t stand up and defend your position (because you know itâ€™s rotten to the core from the start), hide in the shadows and wait until you can, in the darkness, take what you want. If you deserve it, I ask why donâ€™t you do it in the light? Because you know someone with take exception and bring justice to your lifeâ€¦.

Anyhow, she did a fine job of communicating an essential message about life, liberty, the freedom of choice and why this is important.

Category

1. Marines
2. Military
3. Supporting the Troops

Date Created
February 28, 2005
Author
admin