A Call for Help from WordPress Gurusâ€¦.

Description

Station Commando pointed out that my comments section didnâ€™t work. They had on the 9th, but as I dig about, I found that its not just comments. IT also has renedered the permalinks ineffective, dumping you to the top post.

I did chnage the format of the link titles to the â€œshort formâ€• and then things were workingâ€¦problem: It negates all the track flaoting about the netâ€¦.

Anyhowâ€¦if anyone has any fixes, Iâ€™d appreciate them. After 6 hours of the WordPress forum and different search engines, itâ€™s pointing at the FrontPage extensions, but none of the proposed fixes, that others say worked for them worked for meâ€¦.

default watermark

I did, however, in my clicking about, completely disconnect the blog datatabse from the â€œworld,â€• resulting in my getting a â€œIt looks like you havenâ€™t installed WordPress yetâ€¦.â€• errorâ€¦scary, but, I got in and dug about raw data files until I figured out where ti manually edit the database records, and it all came back, complete with the error of the permalinks not working.

My head hurts, but Iâ€™ll go at it more laterâ€¦

Update: (I was gonna go and take and asprin, but I checked the net one more timeâ€¦..) The problem is fixed. I found a post where a blogger said he had upgraded to PHP5 and his permalinks died. I then remembered that last weekend, while doing lots of reformatting for the 2996 Tribute Project post, I also changed over to PHP5 from PHP4 at my web host. I just changed it back and permalinks are now functional!

After about 10-12 hours the last three days looking at changes in style sheets, index formats, sidebars, the database and finally chasing my tail off to the MS FrontPage extensions, it was my using the newest version of the scrrpiting language that had caused the problemâ€¦.go figure.

I hope this helps someone somewhereâ€¦

Category

1. Blogging

Date Created
September 16, 2006
Author
admin