Accessory for the Self-important, Naive and Paranoid Person

Description

HT: Glenn Beckâ€™s radio showâ€¦

NukAlert

Wellâ€¦I wonder how many liberals are hauling one of these around? What will they think of next for the pet rock purchasing crowd?

Câ€™monâ€¦like this will give you more of a clue than the big fireball in your vicinity? Oh, yeahâ€¦maybe one of your fellow travelers is packing a suitcase nuke as a carry on, and you (without a parachute as your carry on) want to know.

Glenn said this is a favorite inside the Beltway accessory.

Iâ€™m thinking a e-coli detector you can hold above your mixed green salad would be a hot seller right nowâ€¦.

OH, and the best part (to rip off Glenn), if there is a nuke and it does go off, and you didnâ€™t get enough warningâ€¦itâ€™s not like you will be around to sue them in a class action suit. On top of that (we return now to original thought), which of your neighbors has a calibrated â€œsourceâ€• out on their tool bench that, while youâ€™re over for a beer on Saturday afternoon, is available to do preventative maintenace checks on your key fob?

Heyâ€¦itâ€™s only $160â€¦.(or $145/ea if you buy one for your significant other at the same time) mere pocket change for the DC crowdâ€¦
