Ropeyarn Sunday â€œSea Storiesâ€• and Open Trackbacks

Description

The customer base is overactive this week, which is a good thing, but, cuts into blogging time.

Besides the superior trackbacks you readers might send, I refer you to a post I wrote after finding a comment on another blog. The title: â€œHow to Bury a Heroâ€• by (then) HM3 James Pell.

In the spirit of the movie â€œ300,â€• some reminder from a modern day Spartan on how to lay your comrade to rest.

James, last I could track him down, made HM2 (Petty Officer Second Class Corpsman), but his email address wasnâ€™t working. About 6 months ago, a friend of Marine LCpl Antoine Smith sent me an email after finding the post linked above, asking how to get a hold of James, so she could thank him. I sent out a few queries and was able to get a lead for her.

default watermark

Itâ€™s all about connections and relationships, when you peel all else away.

Category

1. "Sea Stories"
2. Blogging
3. History
4. Marines
5. Military
6. Navy
7. Open Trackbacks
8. Supporting the Troops

Date Created
March 14, 2007
Author
admin