Thank You, It Was 7/21/1969 to Me

Description

Yep, it was a historic day, the pinnacle of our space program, put together with men using pencils, notepads and slide rules. They got three men all the way to the surface of the moon, with few casualties along the way.

Steeljaw Scribeâ€™s Flight Deck Friday post (a regular attraction, in case you didnâ€™t know â€“ every Friday) pays tribute to this spectacular event of 1969.

To me, I was on the other side of the date line, so this all happened on 7/21/1969 for me. Oh, yeah, the Guam Daily News didnâ€™t mention it until page 4. You see, it was the 25th Anniversary of the Liberation of Guam, so they were a little preoccupied with celebrating a special day for those who lived through the Japanese occupation.

default watermark

Get over and read what SJS has to say about this day so many years ago.

Category

1. History
2. Military
3. Military History
4. Science
5. Technology

Date Created
July 20, 2007
Author
admin