A Tribute to Ambassors with Muddy Boots

Description

What a testimony to our soldiers, sailors, airmen and Marines!

From Yahoo! News today:

> Iraqi to return home, as a U.S. soldier
>
> By CLARKE CANFIELD, Associated Press Writer Sat Feb 23, 7:53 AM ET
>
> LEWISTON, Maine â€“ Safaa Wadi moved to this former mill city after his life was threatened in his native Iraq while serving as an interpreter for the U.S. Army. He expects to soon head back to Iraq Ã¢â‚–â€• not as a civilian interpreter, but as a U.S. soldier.
> ADVERTISEMENT
>
> Wadi arrived in the United States in September with a special immigrant visa for Iraqi and Afghan interpreters. But with his savings nearly depleted and unable to land a decent job, Wadi enlisted in the Army. He begins training in South Carolina on Monday.
>
> Wadi isnâ€™t worried about returning to Iraq, where many of his countrymen considered him a traitor because he worked with American forces. His allegiance is now to the United States, he says.
>
> â€œI want to serve this country because this country returned to me my life,â€• Wadi said. â€œIf I had stayed in Iraq, Iâ€™d be dead now.â€• > [â€¦]

default watermark

If Barack can use the words of one Army captain (who I suspect has a name like â€œCAPT Jesse MacBethâ€•, for the record) to impunge the Office of the President (hey, BHOâ€¦.â€•it will happen to you, it will happen to me, it will happen to everyone eventuallyâ€¦â€• as the song goes (not my words, but Iâ€™m not sure who did it)), then I will use one Iraqi to proclaim our success in the overall OIF campaign, fair enough?

Category

1. Public Service

Date Created
February 23, 2008
Author
admin