Stop the Murdoch (Flt 93) Memorial Blogburst: Two Memorial Project Commission members quit over the Project's bad behavior

Two PennsylvanianÃ¢â‚¬â„¢s quit the Flight 93 Memorial Commission last week, protesting Park Service plans to condemn five crash-site properties that it never negotiated for in good faith. Consider the case of the Lambert family, who have been on their land for three generations:

> â€œItâ€™s absolutely a surprise. Iâ€™m shocked by it. Iâ€™m disappointed by it,â€• said Tim Lambert, who owns nearly 164 acres that his grandfather bought in the 1930s. The park service plans to condemn two parcels totaling about five acres Ã¢â‚¬â€• land, he said, he had always intended to donate for the memorial.
> â€œTo the best of my knowledge and my lawyer, absolutely no negotiations have taken place with the park service where weâ€™ve sat down and discussed this,â€• Lambert said.
> Lambert said he had mainly dealt with the Families of Flight 93 and said heâ€™s provided the group all the information itâ€™s asked for, including an appraisal.

They are condemning land that he was trying to GIVE to them, just because he had the gall to expect the Park Service to actually do its part.

Project members have embraced the Ã¢â‚¬Å“absolute moral authorityÃ¢â‚¬Â• conceit

How dare anyone not rush to give these grieving 9/11 family members whatever they want? DidnÃ¢â‚¬â„¢t they hear Maureen DowdÃ¢â‚¬â„¢s proclamation that Ã¢â‚¬Å“the moral authority of parents who bury children killed in Iraq [or on 9/11] is absoluteÃ¢â‚¬Â•?

When crash-site owner Mike Svonavec put up a donation box to try to cover some of the cost of hiring security guards for the hugely popular Temporary Memorial, Patrick White, cousin of Flight 93 hero Louis Nacke, told the press:

> That land has been paid for with 40 lives â€¦ the donation box is an insult to that cost.

When Svonavec insisted that the Park Service follow its own legally required procedures for assessing property values (procedures that, as it happens, take into account current property values, not just pre-crash property values), White accused Svonavec of trying to profit from the blood of his cousin:

> â€œI think Svonavec believes his land, because it has the blood of my cousin and 39 other people, itâ€™s worth more,â€• he said.

Using the flag of victim-hood to defend Paul MurdochÃ¢â‚¬â„¢s terrorist memorial mosque Project members use the same trick to deflect criticism of the giant Islamic-shaped crescent that is now being built on the crash-site. When people point out the hidden terrorist memorializing featuresÃ¢â‚¬â€• things that no one knew about when the Crescent of Embrace design was chosenÃ¢â‚¬â€•like the Mecca-orientation of the giant crescent, or the 44 glass blocks emplaced along the flight path, Project members not only deny these easy to verify facts, but they pretend that they are being accused of intending to honor the terrorists:

> Ã¢â‚¬Å“ThatÃ¢â‚¬â„¢s an absolute, unequivocal fabrication that is being portrayed as fact,Ã¢â‚¬Â• said Edward FeltÃ¢â‚¬â„¢s brother, Gordon Felt [about the 44 blocks claim].
> He says he is insulted people would believe he would participate in anything that honored his brotherâ€™s killers.

In The Church of Liberalism, Ann Coulter slammed the media for granting the Jersey Girls an Ã¢â‚¬Å“absolute moral authorityÃ¢â‚¬Â• card, not questioning the GirlsÃ¢â‚¬â„¢ practice of blaming the Bush administration instead of al Qaeda for their husbandâ€™s deaths on 9/11. The Jersey Girls were bad enough, but nowhere is the flag of victim-hood being used to cover up more bad behavior than at the Memorial Project.

Active cover-up of an ongoing Islamic supremacist plot

Like the Jersey Girls, the Memorial Project gives Islam a pass for 9/11. Project members might not have known about the Mecca-orientation of the Crescent of Embrace, but they DID know that it was a giant Islamic-shaped crescent. Now they are doing far worse. Now they DO know that the giant crescent points almost exactly at Mecca, and are consistently misleading the press about it.

Their own Muslim consultant told them not to worry about the Mecca-oriented crescent, claiming that it canÃ¢â‚¬â„¢t be seen as a mihrab (the Mecca-direction indicator around which every mosque is built) unless it points EXACTLY at Mecca (a claim that was contradicted earlier this month by Saudi religious authorities).

So what does Project Supervisor Joanne Hanley say when asked about the Mecca-orientation claim?

> The only thing that orients the memorial is the crash site.

They are actively and knowingly covering up clear evidence of an ongoing al Qaeda sympathizing plot. Bad behavior indeed.
