Description

How about a computer that fits into a standard electrical wall socket form factor?

JackPC from Chip PC Technologies

With a monitor and a keyboard mouse, you're all set! More news here about this new toy on ZDNet.

Virtual Keyboard

Toss one of these in your computer bag (also available from ThinkGeeks.com) and then it's the choice of monitor that will ultimately determine how mobile you can get! oh, yeah, you'll need your humongous USB drive with your own data, coupled with web based applications. Think about it!

Maybe you have a hard time keeping your laptop plugged into a wall socket due to cord length:

Wireless Extension Cord - Up to 300'

Not too shabby for $34.99 to get 300' feet of extra reach without the liability of someone tripping over your cord at Borders! Details on ThinkGeek.com here.
